The Science Of How We Came To Be

By Donna Richoz Harber, MSW, CBT

The new sciences of quantum physics, neuropsychology, and nutrigenomics, each day, shed a new understanding of who we are as humans. When we are able to listen to the sciences from a prefrontal lobe, they begin to whisper to us the long-preserved meaning of life and a way to creating balance in our body. The theory Bio Self-Emergence has emerged from viewing the scientific information from the soul whisper of the prefrontal cortex. Currently, we stand on the edge of movement into this understanding.

The awakening to the unseen life of vibration via quantum physics and the confirming of the memory of water is the beginning of our movement from a Newtonian view (A → B → C → D) of the universe. This view is fading, as are linear ways of understanding, to be replaced with the quantum understanding.

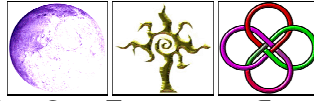

Personally and professionally, each of us are challenged with making sense of our lives in a sea of new and emerging theories and information. As we move from a linear Newtonian view to an inter-related quantum view, an unseen energetic process that forms us begins to unfold.

This, then, leads us to the beginning of Bio Self-Emergence, the inter-related journey of the unseen vibratory energy of the soul emerging through a process to form an evolved human being. The process of emergence is sequenced like developmental stages of childhood adolescence that have been observed and recorded for decades. The Bio Self-Emergence stages are energetically unseen, yet they are occurring, just as the seen psychological development stages.

The journey of emergence begins at conception, when the energy vortex is formed at the meeting of the inwardly (yang) spiraling of the egg and the outwardly (yin) spiraling of the sperm. The vortex, like water, around different energies will form different crystal forms (The Memory of Water: Masaru Emoto), will be coded and call or draw the soul essence and the journey begins. Grasser and Blechschmidt have proven that human differentiation occurs through a metabolic cell membrane fluid transfer. This means that the amount of fluid and the flow of fluid meets the dividing cells via the membrane, signaling the cells to differentiate into brain cells, nerve cells, muscle cells, etc.

Bio Self-Emergence Theory comes out of this connection to the energy flow that makes us human through the knowing that this flow and connection does not stop at birth – it only gets more complicated and our development as humans continues to cue on the unseen energy of cell membrane transfer (80% of our experience of things is non-verbal and unseen with the eye).

The Bio Self-Emergence Institute

There are seven Bio Self-Emergence stages of development, each with corresponding muscular structure, energetic flow in the body, and chakra development. The seven stages are cycled through twice, from conception to adult.

The emergence of the soul essence energy occurs through the cellular energetic muscular process completing. Example: The first stage of Bio Self-Emergence “Bonding to the Self” occurs from conception up to one month of life. The cellular recording/imprinting occurs on many levels. One of the mechanisms to assure that the human organism records the energy in the environment and what it corresponds to is the “grasp reflex”. Each time a baby’s hand grasps around a finger or other object, the cell membranes take in the charge of the grasped item, information that is fed back into the central nervous system and autonomic system to be recorded in the brain. The ring finger correlates to our relationship with our mother and or other and it changes and imprints the limbic system and the emotional brain. This emotional brain will dictate energy flow and the use of the sixth chakra. Example: The mother is depressed or overwhelmed after the birth of the baby. Her energy for the baby to record will be depressed or a low charge. The baby usually interpreted this as “other not being available to meet as needed” to develop and change the human body to support the soul essence energy in further emergence into embodied flesh.

Resolution of this recording involves work on a body-energy level, where the person and the practitioner have insight and knowledge as to what was being worked with. The brain and autonomic system is not cued on all levels and phases without this knowledge.
